WILLOW TECHNOLOGY ANNOUNCES WEBSPHERE MQ SUPPORT FOR SO OPENSER 6

NEW YORK, NY.—Jun. 22, 2005--Willow Technology, Inc. today announced the immediate availability of a number of its products to run on the newly launched SCO OpenServer 6.

The latest version of SCO OpenServer, incorporating SRV5 kernel enhancements and support for kernel level threading allows Willow to now provide its many OpenServer customers with the latest versions of WebSphere MQ, viaMQ: Files and viaMQ: CustomsDirect – something that has been enjoyed by UnixWare users for the past four years.

WebSphere MQ is the leading enterprise messaging middleware in the world, and is developed by Willow under license from IBM. WebSphere MQ runs on over 35 operating systems.

viaMQ: Files and viaMQ: CustomsDirect are products that utilize the services of WebSphere MQ infrastructure.

viaMQ: Files provides customers with a way to interface legacy applications to native WebSphere MQ applications without needing to change those applications, as well as a reliable file to file transfer mode over MQ.

viaMQ: CustomsDirect provides an “out of the box” MQ interface to the Automated Broker Interface (ABI), Automated Export Systems (AES) and Automated Manifest System (AMS) applications of U.S. Customs, again without the need for customers to modify existing applications.

The speed and performance of WebSphere MQ under OpenServer 6 has improved by 300-400%, with even greater improvements when using the Java components.
